CONSTITUTION OF ST. JOHN EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

PREAMBLE

Our God requires that His people shall conform to His Divine Word in doctrine and practice (Ps. 119:105; Mt. 28:18-20; Gal. 1:6-8; II Tim. 4:1-5), and that all things be done decently and in order (I Cor. 14:40).

"Here is a trustworthy saying: if anyone sets his heart on being an overseer, he desires a noble task," writes St. Paul in I Timothy 3:1. Such nobility is a matter neither of birthright nor inherent quality but of the call of God to serve His Holy Church. From earliest times God has called and appointed servants to speak His Word and to officiate His deeds before His people and even unto the world. Primarily we designate these called spokesmen as prophets and apostles. In these latter times God calls His servants through His Church where they are therein ordained: approved as ready and able to preach the Gospel, teach the Word, absolve sin in the name of Christ and administer the Holy Sacraments. Pastors, as they are called, offer the public ministry of Word and Sacrament to all the saints of the congregation on behalf of Christ. Christ is the Head of His Church who gathers by His Spirit the faithful to receive in worship His life-giving grace. This authority belongs to the whole Church but is exercised publicly by the called and ordained servant of God. Thus by calling a pastor, a congregation maintains a God-pleasing order to the ministry of the Gospel.

St. Paul again speaks of the pastoral office when in I Thessalonians he writes; "Now we ask you, brothers, to respect those who work hard among you, who are over you in the Lord and who admonish you. Hold them in the highest regard in love because of their work," and again in Hebrews 13:17, "Obey your leaders and submit to their authority. They keep watch over you as men who must give an account. Obey them so that their work may be a joy, not a burden, for that would be of no advantage to you." Thus Scripture grants an authority to pastors as leaders and visionaries in their congregations. Their counsel must be weighed heavily in both spiritual and temporal matters. Yet this is a power best demonstrated in humility and not a "lording over." A pastor is a shepherd under Christ, the Good Shepherd, who laid down His life for His sheep.

Lastly, Scripture notes those who uniquely support the pastor from the priesthood of believers in His ministry and offer him their advice (see Acts 6: 1-4; I Timothy 3: 8-13). They are here designated as elders and must, as the pastor, demonstrate temperance, humility, discernment and a willingness to serve rather than be served. Their place in the congregation is deserving of respect as they regularly offer their time and love in the spiritual and temporal care of the congregation's membership.

While the commissioning of Christ to share the Gospel to all nations and the command to love our neighbors and share their burdens and joys is the call of all Christians, God has so ordered His Church by calling and ordaining pastors and appointing and commissioning elders to facilitate, inspire, guide and direct this mission and ministry to His glory and the greatest possible productivity of all the Body of Christ.

Therefore we, the members of St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church, accept and subscribe to the following Constitution and By-Laws, in which are established the principles of incorporation, and by which all spiritual and material affairs of the congregation shall be governed.
